Client Contributions: What You Need to Know

At Livable, we're committed to helping you live independently.

If you receive funding through the Commonwealth Home Support Programme (CHSP), the Australian Government requires providers to ensure participants contribute to the cost of their services. CHSP is an entry-level support program that helps older Australians remain independent and connected within their communities.

Why am I being asked to contribute?

The maximum contribution fee Livable will apply for participants receiving multiple services under CHSP funding is capped at $90⁰⁰ per week. This cap excludes Allied Health and Therapy Services.

The Government subsidises most of the cost but asks participants to make a contribution toward the services they receive.

We understand that everyone's circumstances are different and we're here to help you access the support you need by providing:

- Clear information about your contribution
- Flexibility if your financial situation changes
- A financial hardship process if you need assistance
